SCHOLAR
OF THE WEEK

FEMALE SCHOLAR

Giana Zubke
Athens High School ♦ Senior

Humble by nature, Giana Zubke is not one to trumpet her laurels. She is a powerhouse in the classroom, however, maintaining a 4.0 GPA. Giana is one of those rare types of individual who achieves perfection in whatever she attempts, whether it be a keen athlete on the softball field or a dynamic percussionist in the high school band. When she sets the beat, her fellow musicians unquestionably follow her lead. Her club activities include Future Business Leaders of America, Student Council, National Honor Society and Math League. She seeks and pursues volunteer activities such as Camp Restore in New Orleans, Lutheran Youth fellowship programs and blood drives. If you want to succeed, you want her to be on your team.

MALE SCHOLAR

Matthew Wassmann
Athens High School ♦ Senior

Being a man of a few words, Matthew Wassmann packs a wallop of painstaking intelligence when he does speak. He is a valuable member of the Academic Decathlon team, as he is depended upon to keep the score consistently high. A friend to all, he has an especially strong bond to his fellow members of the cross country team, where he has been a steady and reliable runner for the last three years; and in spring, you can find him on the baseball field. Unassuming and modest, the only time you'll find Matt tooting his own horn is in the high school band, where he superbly plays his trumpet. He is an active member of the Athens Acres 4-H and Lutheran Youth Fellowship. Matt began his senior year with a GPA of 3.98, and has a class ranking of second.
