EMERGENCY SHOPPING (VEHICLE EMERGENCY ITEMS)

"Emergency Shopping" is not to be confused with a "Shopping Emergency." This one is encouraging you to go shopping for a few items that could help you out if you ever have an emergency in your vehicle. They're all things carried in emergency vehicles.

This goes beyond the old standards like a first aid kit, a blanket, jumper cables and the like, though those are all great things to have on board. But consider purchasing these additional things to keep in your vehicle in case you find yourself stranded in a dangerous spot.

Emergency vehicles carry road flares, and for a good reason. They burn a bright red light, visible both at night and during the day. Flares provide one of the most effective ways of getting the attention of drivers who are approaching a disabled vehicle. Don't be intimidated by them; they're easy to light, and they can truly save your life by preventing another vehicle from crashing into you. They come in kits with a carrying case, or you can get them individually.

Another item emergency vehicles carry is a fire extinguisher. Special smaller ones are made for non-commercial vehicles. The type to look for is one that can put out different kinds of fires, such as electrical and petroleum (oil, gasoline) since many different kinds of fires can start in your vehicle. Some have a mounting bracket to keep them from moving around.

At night, if you have a flat tire or need to attend to someone who's injured, you need to be able to see what you're doing. So, get an LED flashlight designed for automotive use. Many not only have a beam to aim at something; they also have a built-in lantern to light up a bigger area. It's a must-have light to read instructions on jacking your vehicle or helping to bandage a cut after an accident. Don't think your cell phone is going to do the job; plus, you need that for communication - save the battery.

The final item is a no-brainer, but it's a basic when it comes to staying alive. Have a supply of drinking water and some snacks on hand in your vehicle. If you are ever stranded, you don't want to have to resort to eating bugs and drinking melted snow. Power bars and bottled water are the easiest way to go on these.

Your Auto Select may have recommendations on which brands will work best for your situation and where they can be purchased. Emergency crews carry all these things for a reason. You should, too. Not only could they save your life, but they could also help you save someone else.

HUMOR

I recently went to my 30th class reunion from nursery school. I didn't want to go because I've put on maybe 90 or 100 pounds since then.

One zoo keeper said to the other zoo keeper: "I've lost one of my elephants."

The other zookeeper said: "Why don't you put an advertisement in the paper?"

The first zoo keeper replied: "Don't be silly, he can't read!"

Police Officer: "Your truck is heavily overloaded. I simply cannot let you continue like that. I'm going to have to take away your driver's license."

Truck Driver: "You're kidding me, right? The license can only weigh one ounce, tops!"

What company opened the first drive-in gas station?

A: GULF OPENED UP THE FIRST STATION IN PITTSBURGH, PA IN 1913.

Before the advent of the drive-in filling station, gasoline was sold at grocery stores, livery stables, hardware stores and even pharmacies. Vehicles pulled next to the curb or sidewalk, where fuel was hand-pumped into a container, then poured into the vehicle's tank.

Pittsburgh's was the first structure designed and built as a drive-in filling station.

On its first day, the Gulf station sold 30 gallons of gasoline at 27 cents per gallon.
