Joke of the month

Two blondes in a pickup truck drive into a lumberyard.

*One of the men walks in the office and says,
"We need some four-by-twos."*

*The clerk asks,
"You mean two-by-fours, don't you?"*

*The blonde says, "
I'll go check," and goes back to the truck.*

*He returns and says,
"Yeah, I meant two-by-four."*

"All right. How long do you need them?"

*The blonde pauses for a minute and says,
"I'd better go check."*

*After a while, the blonde returns to the office and says,
"A long time. We're gonna build a house."*

Nobody's ever built a window like this before.

Thicker, stronger 0.050" extruded aluminum cladding. It's at least twice as thick as competitors' roll-form cladding for greater durability and dent resistance. Available in white, sand or bronze.

Extra-strong 0.072" vinyl base frame for superior rigidity, tight corners, total protection against rot and enhanced resistance to air or water leaks. No vinyl components are visible when window is closed.

Solid wood interior for warmth, beauty and thermal insulation. Not just a veneer like other mid-priced windows. Select ponderosa pine available natural or primed.

Introducing the remarkably advanced Hurd H3. Three years in the making, it's the first mid-priced window that's also high-efficiency, high-end and high-performance. The H3 is engineered and built using Fusion Technology™, our patent pending construction process.

President's Message

Hello Everyone,

Hello again, hope everyone had a nice Memorial Day weekend.

If it wasn't for our Soldiers who fought for this Country we would not have our Freedom as we know it today. Thanks to all that were in the military and gave so much.

It's a sure sign of summer's coming, the 1st long weekend, warm weather and The Parade of Homes, Yes the Parade of Homes. The builders are working hard to finish up the houses and making this year the best parade ever. I would like to Thank the 10 Builders who have put the 12 homes in the parade this year, the Associate members for furnishing the homes, the Parade of Homes Committee for all the hard work putting together this years parade, the Marketing Committee for getting the advertising together, well lets just say THANK YOU everyone who has helped, if not for ALL of you it would not have come together. Stop by check out the Homes and thank them for doing it, it's a major fundraiser for WABA June 5th – 10th, why not offer to help take tickets at one of the homes, I'm sure they all could use some help.

Speaking of June 5th that is Election Day, we need you all to get out and vote. WBA and WABA needs you to remind everyone, our families, our employees and our friends who feel the same way we do, to go to the polls and cast support for Governor Scott Walker and Lieutenant Governor Rebecca Kleefisch, They support the building trade industry and will help get life back as we once knew it. This election is important and all the gains they have made in the past year and a half are at stake. We are finally starting to see some economic recovery and a loss in this election could be devastating to our industry. Remember all those impact fees, prevailing wages, permit fees and increased government regulations? We just don't want to go backwards! So let's get out there on June 5th and vote for Walker and Kleefisch.

Since this is the month of June, remember there is no Dinner Meeting this month. Although there is still a Board Meeting on June 19th @ 4:00pm. There is no rest for the hard working board members.

Mark your calendars for the WABA Picnic July 19th at Marathon Park, A good time will be had by all.

WABA is still looking for a volunteer to keep our website updated; this should not take more then a couple hours a month. I want to Thank everyone that has stepped up and volunteer some time for this wonderful Association with all the help we are bring back a stronger WABA.

Have a great but safe summer!

REMEMBER TO VOTE TUESDAY JUNE 5TH OR VOTE EARLY!

With law changes made over the past few years, the concept of "early voting" as opposed to "absentee voting" is taking off like never before. According to media reports, those groups opposing Governor Walker and Lt. Governor Kleefisch are out in full force getting people to early vote and are concentrating their efforts in Dane and Milwaukee Counties.

Voter turnout is expected to be high on June 5th, so in order to make sure your vote counts we recommend voting early at your local municipality. For those in larger municipalities, you can likely just stop in during regular business hours and vote. For those in smaller communities, you may want to contact your municipal clerks and find out when you can come in to vote early.

NEW ONLINE SYSTEM AIMS TO REDUCE PERMIT WAIT WHILE BETTER PROTECTING ENVIRONMENT

Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources

Weekly News article published: May 15, 2012 by the Central Office

MADISON - Applicants for some state water-related permits can now use a new online system that state water protection officials say will cut paperwork and deliver quicker, more consistent permit decisions and provide better information to the public about proposed projects.

People can access and register for the online system by searching for "water permit" on the Department of Natural Resources website.

"We see this new system as a win-win for everybody," says Pam Biersach, who leads the Bureau of Watershed Management. "We think it will allow for quicker and better decisions on permit applications, reduce workload for our staff and ensure projects get a more consistent and comprehensive review to better protect our lakes, rivers and wetlands. It will also be much more transparent for the public, who will be able to follow an application online."

The online permit system has a number of different parts that are being phased in over the next year. Right now, applicants will find 72 of the nearly 100 water-related permit applications on the same web page for the first time, and applicants for three of the most popular permit types can now fill out their applications online, pay any fees online, and track the progress of their application online.

Three or four more water permits will be added every quarter until all of water-related program permit applications can be handled online, Biersach says.

The three permit types available for online processing at this time are individual permits for wetland and waterway projects; permit applications for wastewater pit trench de-watering, and permit applications for aquatic plant management on private ponds. Last year, DNR received applications for more than 2,000 individual permits for wetland and waterway projects alone. More complicated projects require individually tailored permits instead of the "general permits" that prescribe general standards avoid harming the environment with lower risk projects.

Biersach says the online permit system will enable applicants to not only fill out and pay their permits online, it also will allow the information to be shared with external customers and partners while giving the applicant round-the-clock access to track where the application is in the process.

For proposed projects where law requires that neighbors and others be notified of the proposal, email notifications will automatically be sent to people who sign up for such notifications through a subscription service called GovDelivery. Public notices will still continue to be published in the legal sections of state newspapers.

That automation will decrease workload for DNR staff, as will the online tracking system, which should reduce how long staff spends on the phone updating applicants on their permit status.

"We see a significant savings to DNR staff in time, paper supplies and mailing costs, and think the result will be that staff can focus on high priority work such as reviewing individual permits, which involve more complicated projects with potential for environmental impacts, and inspecting sites afterward to make sure applicants did what they said they'd do to protect lakes and rivers and wetlands," Biersach said.

Margie Damgaard, the project leader, says the online system has a check-off to assure applicants turn in the necessary pieces information for a complete submittal, something that hasn't always happened in the past and that has significantly slowed permit review times.

Damgaard says the online system also has programmed in "checks and balances" so that all review steps must be completed before the permit decision is issued. That check will assure that the appropriate staff with information regarding a permit application and its potential impact will be able to provide input, whether that involves pulling in a fisheries or wildlife biologist in addition to the regulatory staff who normally review the permit applications.

This new system will provide better overall protection of natural resources where projects are proposed, will provide more consistent decisions across DNR regions and water-related programs, and will help eliminate duplication of effort by staff.

"We've very excited to have this first phase of the permitting system come online and look forward to working with our staff, partners, and applicants to make sure it works well for everybody."

It's Walker vs. Barrett Part 2

After spending in excess of $3-4 million in independent expenditures by the public employee unions, Kathleen Falk was shellacked by Milwaukee Mayor Tom Barrett 58%-34%. Barrett's win sets up a rematch with now Governor Scott Walker on June 5, 2012.

It should be no surprise that this race will be framed very differently by each side during the next month. Walker and those spending money independently on his behalf will say this race is about moving forward (his budget reforms have worked and we are in a better place than before he was governor) or moving backward ($3.6 billion budget deficit, higher taxes and high unemployment.)

Barrett and his supporters will use their version of the "jobs numbers" to say we are not moving forward, mention so-called "war on women" and point to the ongoing "John Doe" investigation as reasons why voters should choose him in June.

Whatever message above sells best with the very few voters who are "undecided" in this election will likely win on June 5 (in addition to who is able to better turn out their supporters).

670,278 vs. 626,538

The most positive sign that the GOP is energized for the recall election can be seen in the number of people who went to the polls in each primary. In my opinion this is a very, very positive sign for not only Governor Walker but also the four GOP state senators who are also facing a recall election on June 5.

True, Governor Walker did face a GOP primary challenger, a "fake" Republican who ran to try to keep voters from crossing over to vote in the Democrat primary for Governor but very little was done to really get out the vote for Walker. Outside of some e-mails and social media encouraging supporters to vote for Walker, nothing else was really done to turn out voters yesterday. That being said, the number of voters who chose Walker, 670,278 was very close to the total number of people who voted in the Democratic primary, 626,538.

One would think that what was preserved as a competitive Primary, where all four candidates had extensive get out the vote efforts, would drive many more voters to the polls to support their chosen candidate. That simply did not happen. It is also interesting to note the 626,538 number falls well short of the number of recall signatures that were turned in earlier this year as well.

Bottom line...if the GOP can keep up this intensity and continue to get their supporters to the polls on June 5, it will be huge benefit to Governor Walker and his GOP colleagues running for the state senate as well.

Professor Charles Franklin kicks off new Advocacy Group Forum

The newly created Advocacy Group met recently for the first time as a part of the new Wisconsin Builders Association Member Meeting at the Chula Vista Resort in Wisconsin Dells.

The Advocacy Group is the combination of the former government affairs committee, building code committee, development sub-committee and the Building a Better Wisconsin Political Action Committee. It will be the goal of this newly formed group to cover the topics that were handled by separate committees in the past and to do so more efficiently and with more member involvement.

This year's Advocacy Group Chair is Brad TenPas and the Vice-Chair is Mike Wirtz.

In addition to a discussion of political fundraising and an update on the four state senate recall elections, WBA members who attended the Advocacy Group forum were treated to an in-depth discussion on recent polling by Marquette Professor Charles Franklin.

Professor Franklin has been doing extensive polling in Wisconsin on the gubernatorial recall election, the race for President, and the open seat for the U.S. Senate. During the discussion with the WBA Advocacy Group, Professor Franklin concentrated on recent polling in the gubernatorial recall election that had been released the day before.

Franklin's polling showed a very tight race between Governor Walker and likely Democratic nominee and current Milwaukee Mayor Tom Barrett. When looking at "registered voters" and "likely voters" the race is a statistical tie with Barrett leading by one with those registered and Walker leading by one with likely voters.

WBA members attending asked great questions on the methodology of polling and Franklin gave easy to understand and very informative answers on those topics as well.

Three of the most interesting points taken from Franklin's presentation were the fact that Governor Walker is well defined and people have a very strong opinion on him (you either love him or dislike him); Mayor Barrett's negatives have increased a great deal in the last month (most likely due to advertising done against him); and finally that around 20% of the electorate still do not have an opinion one way or the other on Barrett (those people can be moved in one direction or another before the June 5th general election should he advance on Tuesday).

Thank you to Hosts, Attendees of Walker event

After Governor Scott Walker addressed the full WBA Board of Directors meeting on Thursday, May 3, a great group of members also attended a fundraising event to help in the recall efforts.

Thank you once again to all of the host committee members and attendees that help raise over $20,000 for Governor Walker!

DNR wants examples of ASNRI holdups

Attention developers and waterfront builders: has the term "ASNRI Waters" been giving you heartburn? If so, we need to hear your story. Please get in touch with WBA's Jerry Deschane (608-514-3693 or e-mail (jdeschane@wisbuild.org) the details). ASNRI's are lakes, rivers, streams and cow puddles (sorry, a little editorializing there) that have been deemed to have "special" natural resource interest and are subject to a higher degree of red tape squeezing. When the Legislature passed wetland law reform this year, it removed any references to these so-called "Areas of Special Natural Resource Interest," but ASNRI's still come into play for waterway permits, including DNR permits for piers, grading, culverts, et al.

You've told us in the past that the list of ASNRI's is too long and that it includes some waters that really aren't all that special. We passed that along to DNR Secretary Cathy Stepp, who is looking into the issue as part of her ongoing drive to improve the operations at DNR. She has asked us for specific examples of permits that were denied or delayed because of ASNRI issues. Help us help you; send us stories that you have been involved in!

Senate Recalls: All about Racine

As reported in past issues of the Friday Update, there are four state senate recall elections going on across the state (Fitzgerald, open Wausau-based seat, Moulton and Wanggaard) to determine the majority party in the State Senate heading into the November general election.

Senator Fitzgerald will win his recall election handily, so for sake of discussion we will take that race off the table.

Rep. Petrowski looks to be in very good shape against Rep. Seidel in the open Wausau based seat. Unless Seidel can make a move very soon, that race may also be taken off the list of competitive seats as well.

Senator Terry Moulton of Chippewa Falls faces former State Representative Kristen Dexter in the Chippewa Falls/Eau Claire based seat. Dexter was also the person that defeated Moulton for state assembly in 2008. By all accounts this is a very close race with Moulton polling slightly ahead. Most believe that Governor Walker's numbers have rebounded in this area and his strong showing should be enough to pull Moulton through to victory as well.

That leaves the City of Racine-based seat that is a rematch of the 2010 election pitting Senator Van Wanggaard versus the man he beat for the job, former Senator John Lehman. Right now it is a coin flip as to who will win this race. All polling shows this race as close and within the margin of error. If everything today holds, the majority party in the state senate leading into the 2012 general elections likely will be determined by this state senate seat.

NAHB Rally for Homeownership date set

In previous Friday Updates, we have mentioned NAHB's efforts to organize a Rally for Homeownership in Wisconsin sometime in late summer or early fall of 2012. After working around the NAHB Fall Board meeting and the WBA Member Meeting on October 7th, NAHB has settled on a date of Thursday, September 27th in the Milwaukee area.

NAHB has been in contact with WBA and Metropolitan BA staff professionals to begin planning for this exciting event!

A successfully Rally for Homeownership was held in South Carolina in January and NAHB will be building on the success of that event to make homeownership a top priority for lawmakers by highlighting the housing challenges facing communities across America.

Stay tuned for more details on this important event as they become available!
